Career Objective:

- As an Assistant Professor in the Department of B.Ed. at Katwa College, I, Dr. Arpan Das, am deeply committed to advancing the field of education through innovative teaching practices and research. With a particular interest in immigration education, language education, and the development of comprehensive educational frameworks, I aim to contribute to shaping effective education policies that address the evolving needs of diverse student populations.
- With a deep interest in the revitalization of India’s Traditional Knowledge Systems, I aim to explore innovative strategies for incorporating these teachings into modern educational frameworks. I am committed to enhancing teaching and learning strategies that not only preserve cultural wisdom but also equip students with critical skills for the globalized world. I am passionate about developing and implementing frameworks that foster inclusive and accessible education, especially for marginalized groups. By conducting research in these areas and collaborating with policymakers, I aspire to be a catalyst in creating transformative changes that will enrich both classroom experiences and educational policy at a national level.

Research Interests:

- Bharatiya Knowledge System (BKS)
 - Education of Immigrants
- The role of Artificial Intelligence (AI) in transforming Indian education
 - Language Learning and Language Education
 - Comparative Educational Policy study
